HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

By HENRY ADAMS. Vols. III. and IV. SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON. 12mo, $4.00.

The first two volumes of this work, covering the first administration of Jefferson, were received with great favor both by the public and by the press. The two volumes now issued are equally important and will command equal attention.

"A memorable addition to American historical literature in a work which will take rank with Bancroft's and above Hildreth's, and which is likely to long remain without a rival in the field that the author has marked out for survey. His literary competence, his ripeness of culture and fulness of information, his breadth of sympathy and unswerving impartiality speak for themselves."—New York Sun.

* * * Vols. I. and II. THE FIRST ADMINISTRATION OF THOMAS JEFFERSON. 12mo, $4.00.

Religious Aspect of Evolution.

By JAMES McCOSH, D.D., LL.D., Litt.D. 12mo, $1.00.

NOTES IN SEASON.

RAND, McNALLY & CO. announce for next week an unabridged edition of the journal of Marie Baskhirtseff.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & CO. will publish on the 25th an abridged edition of Edersheim's "Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah."

THE volume of addresses and after-dinner speeches by Chauncey M. Depew, which The Cassell Publishing Company have just ready, has been delayed to include the recent speech in Washington in favor of New York as the site of the World's Fair.

D. LOTHROP CO. have just ready "Eggs: facts and fancies about them," a book brimful of information about eggs, though not a cook-book, compiled by Miss Anna Barrows; "The Dalzell's of Daisy-down," a story of village life for boys and girls, by E. Vinton Blake; and "A Chronicle of Conquest," by Miss Frances C. Sparhawk, a plea for Indian education given in the form of a story.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish next week a helpful little book by Dr. F. H. Rankin, on "Hygiene for Childhood," giving valuable suggestions for the care of children after the period of infancy to completion of puberty; a volume entitled "Evolution of Man and Christianity," by the Rev. Howard McQueary; "The Dominant Seventh," a musical story, by Kate Elizabeth Clark; and in their Town and Country Library a selection of Robert Browning's principal shorter poems.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. have just published "The Conquest of Mexico," in the new library edition of Prescott's works; a revised edition of Dr. Agnew's work on "The Principles and Practice of Surgery;" an elementary work on plane and spherical trigonometry by Prof. E. S. Crawley, of the University of Pennsylvania; "The Third Reading-Book" in Lippincott's New Series of Readers; "A Last Love," by Georges Ohnet; and a guide to "Philadelphia and its Surroundings."

MACMILLAN & CO. have nearly ready Sir Charles Dilke's "Problems of Greater Britain," which English critics rank in importance with Bryce's "American Commonwealth." It is one of the most exhaustive accounts yet attempted of the British Empire and written by a statesman of the first rank. It gives but passing attention to the United States, and chiefly for purposes of comparison with Canada, but about one-half of the first volume deals with North America, and the whole subject has great interest for every American.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD announce that the death of Mr. Frank Marshall will cause no delay in the publication of "Hamlet," the eighth and final volume in their Henry Irving Shakespeare. It is said that Mr. Marshall's arduous labors on this monumental edition of Shakespeare were the indirect cause of his death. The same house also announces its appointment as sole agents in the United States for the world-renowned "Baedeker Guide-Books." A new book shortly to be issued is "Laugh and Learn," a book of nursery lessons and nursery games, by Jennett Humphreys, with many illustrations.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued the third and fourth volumes of Henry Adams' "History of the United States," which will contain considerable new material bearing upon the Aaron Burr conspiracy, and other events of Jefferson's second term of office, 1805 to 1809; a book by Richard M. Smith on "Emigration and Immigration;" Dr. Philip Schaff's "Literature and Poetry;" "The Religious Aspect of Evolution," by Dr. James McCosh, a series of lectures delivered in 1887 in the Theological Seminary of the Diocese of Ohio and at Kenyon College. The publication of Mrs. Burnett's "Little Saint Elizabeth" will be delayed till March, waiting for illustrations by Reginald Birch, who did such beautiful work for "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The Scribners have succeeded in making arrangements to publish Stanley's account of his recent expedition to the interior of Africa. They have secured the entire American rights to the book, and will publish it as soon as possible after the manuscript is received. The book will be in two volumes with many illustrations, and will probably be sold by subscription. In addition to the book, Mr. Stanley has agreed to write an article for Scribner's Magazine, which will be published at as early a day as possible.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Each Evangelist furnishes some matter, found, if at all, not so fully in the other records. It has been sought to blend all the various features of the four narratives into one, without losing whatever is distinctive in each. Where words or phrases are retained which seem almost equivalent, the risk of repetition has been preferred to that of losing even a slight shade of meaning needed to complete the inspired picture of the life, words, and works of the Son of God, and it has been sought to secure a full rather than a smooth rendering.

of eight different styles of binding—the Aldine, the Maioli, the Grolier, the Ene, the Gácon, the Roger Payne style, a modern design, American (1853), and a modern design, American (1865). The text minutely describes these specimens besides giving other valuable information. The volume is handsomely printed on linen paper, with wide margins.

The school drill herein set forth has been adopted to a very considerable extent in the English schools, where it has been found of great utility, not only as a purely physical exercise, but as one promoting cheerfulness, erectness of carriage, and general alertness and promptitude in the school work.

Merriman, Mansfield, and Jacoby, H: S. A textbook on roofs and bridges. Pt. 2. Graphic statics. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1890. 7+124 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

The course of instruction in roofs and bridges given to students of civil engineering in the Lehigh University, in which university the two authors are professor and instructor in civil engineering, consists of four parts: first, the computation of stresses in roof trusses and in all the common styles of simple bridge trusses; second, the analysis of stresses by graphic methods; third, the design of a bridge, which includes the proportioning of details and the preparation of working drawings; and fourth, the discussion of cantilever, suspension, continuous, and arched bridges. In this work the second part of this course is presented, together with additional matter, so as to form a tolerably complete treatise on graphic statics as applied to the discussion of common roofs and bridges.

Ohnet, Georges. A last love. Authorized ed. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1890. 1+347 p. D. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 106.) pap., 50 c.

The scene is laid in Paris among the aristocracy of the Faubourg Saint-Germain. The story opens with a brilliantly described fete, followed by private theatricals in the house of the Count and Countess de Fontenay. A telegram and the abrupt disappearance for several hours of the Count excites his wife's suspicions, and destroys her confidence in his love. This is the beginning of a story of unfaithful love—very French in sentiment, and morbid and artificial in its ending.

Paddock, Mrs. A. G. In the toils; or, martyrs of the latter days. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1890.] c. 301 p. D. (American novelists' ser., no. 20.) pap., 50 c.

W., Sept. 28, '89, [922], was received with so much favor by the English and American press that Dr. Paton has at the earnest solicitation of friends continued it. Dr. Pierson, who furnishes an introductory note, says, "We have no hesitation in pronouncing this second part the most fascinating narrative of missionary adventure and heroism and success that we have ever met."

- Raffensperger, Mrs. A. F. Those Raeburn girls. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1890.] c. '89. 2-328 p. D. cl., $1.25.
- In the "Raeburn girls" the author illustrates some of the methods open to women in the way of securing a livelihood. The girls are seven in all, daughters of a college professor, a Virginian, who entertained the old-fashioned Southern idea that a woman should do no labor. Dying, he leaves them little besides the home in which they live. Though apparently helpless, the family are willing to work, and soon look about for ways in which they may turn their various accomplishments to account. They cultivate flowers to sell; they raise silk-worms; one of the girls starts a kindergarten; another bakes cakes and pies, and two others do dressmaking. Among them all they manage to turn a very nice penny.

expression of their various views. There is, however, a love-story and the usual suspense and surprise.

The present volume is a new work, and not a mere abridgment of the "General astronomy" recently published by the author. Much of the material of the larger book has naturally been incorporated in this, and many of its illustrations are used; but everything has been worked over, with reference to the high school course. A brief uranography is presented, covering the constellations visible in the United States, with maps on a scale sufficient for the easy identification of all the principal stars.

COPYRIGHT AND PATENTS AGAIN.

THE opposition to international copyright has again materialized in Washington in the person of Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, who is well known as one of the chief beneficiaries of the Bell telephone patent, which is commonly reported as yielding him a fortune of many million dollars. It is not quite clear whether Mr. Hubbard appears as a lawyer retained by some unknown clients to oppose international copyright, or whether he supposes himself to represent the public at large, or whether he presents an argument arising from his individual prejudice against copyright. But it is not easy to see on what ground he can uphold patents and decry copyrights, whether international or national.

Indeed, as has been many times pointed out, there is one fundamental distinction between patents and copyrights which frees copyright protection from one great argument brought against patent protection. Patents are prohibitory against any use by any party of the idea or form of the patent, whereas copyrights cannot and do not prevent any one from an independent use of ideas or forms. To put this concretely, nobody else can manufacture and sell a telephone so long as Mr. Bell's exclusive patent holds, and it has been publicly stated by Mr. Edison that many improvements on the telephone are withheld from the public essentially for this reason. The patent necessarily makes a monopoly. But nobody is prevented from writing a tragedy about Hamlet because Shakespeare has written "Hamlet;" nor is any author restricted from any expression of his own thought or formulating of his own words because of any one who has written before him. It is perfectly evident that patents prevent while copyrights encourage the development of the ideas of persons coming later in time.

Copyrights share with patents, however, the advantage which makes the latter a concomitant of civilization. They both hold out an inducement to an inventor to invent, whether he works without or with words. The laborer is worthy of his hire. It is questionable whether Professor Bell or Mr. Hubbard, or other persons interested, ought to be able to get millions of dollars for an idea conceived almost simultaneously or soon after, in the progress of the world, by other persons, but it is not questionable whether an author ought to get the few hundreds of thousands of dollars which he obtains from his book which does benefit to the world without preventing any fellow-author from doing his own work in his own way.

THE STATUS OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL BEFORE CONGRESS.

H. R. Elliot to the Boston Advertiser.

R. U. JOHNSON, Secretary of the Copyright League, tells me that the status of the measure before Congress is excellent, in fact, could scarcely be improved. In the Senate, it was reported from the Patents Committee by Senator Platt on the 21st of January, and now occupies a very favorable place on the Senate calendar. The present bill does not differ in any material respect from that which Senator Chace carried through the Senate in the last Congress; the only changes are verbal alterations due to suggestions from Senator Chace and other friends of the bill in the light of larger experience. Senator Platt cannot predict when the bill will come up for discussion in the Senate, but it probably will get a day before very long, possibly in a few weeks. No hostility has been developed, and as the bill has already passed the Senate with only ten negative votes, it will probably not detain the Senate long when it is called up.

In the House, the conditions are almost as favorable. At the beginning of the session two bills were introduced practically identical in their contents; one by Mr. Breckinridge, who introduced the bill in the last Congress, and subsequently one by Gen. Butterworth, who is a strong friend of the measure. The Breckinridge bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee by a vote of the House, following the precedents of the last two Congresses. But the Patents Committee, being desirous to consider and report a bill which was so directly in their sphere of work, introduced through Chairman Butterworth the same bill and had it referred to them. The Judiciary Committee immediately on organization took up the bill and have given it most earnest and friendly consideration. About a fortnight ago a delegation which included Dr. Eggleston, Mr. H. O. Houghton, Mr. W. W. Appleton, Mr. Theodore L. De Vinne, Mr. J. L. Kennedy, and Mr. R. U. Johnson appeared before the committee and through Dr. Eggleston briefly explained its provisions. On Friday last, the committee gave Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard a hearing in opposition to the bill, and as his remarks were so much interrupted on Wednesday by the sharp cross-examination to which he was subjected by members of the committee, he was allowed another hour on Saturday morning to finish his argument, if his rambling statement could be dignified by such a name.

During these hearings, and particularly during the latter one, the friendly feelings of the committee towards the bill became apparent. Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, said that he understood the committee were unanimous in favor of the principle of international copyright, but that he and two or three others of the committee felt disposed to oppose it on account of the manufacturing and printing clauses. He promised, however, that so far as he was concerned there would be no attempt to obstruct a vote in the House, provided a reasonable time were given for debate, and he said that he was convinced the bill would pass the House. One interesting feature in Mr. Hubbard's talk was his admission that he believed international copyright would be of benefit, though he opposed the measure in the shape it now took.

In the Patents Committee, one of the most active friends of the measure is Mr. Simonds, of Connecticut. This gentleman, though a new member, is likely to take an important part in any discussions of the bill, as he is a recognized authority on patent and copyright law. As a lecturer in the Yale Law School on this subject, and the author of a treatise on patents, his views will undoubtedly have much weight. He is the chairman of the sub-committee in the Patents Committee, which has a bill under consideration, and as such, he is giving the bill his personal attention. He has expressed his desire to coöperate most cordially with the Judiciary Committee, and says that all the friends of the measure in the House will join hands in promoting its chances.

While there has been no opportunity as yet to gauge the feeling of the House, the inquiries that have been made bring out the fact that no opposition of consequence has appeared, and that the chief resistance will come from Congressional inertia. I need not say that the Massachusetts members are entirely friendly. Gen. Banks, Mr. Lodge, Mr. Andrews, Mr. Candler, and others have given assurances of their zeal in the cause and desire to do what they can to promote its interests. Assuming that there will soon be a bill on the calendar of the House with one, if not two, favorable reports behind it, we are justified in the expectation that the measure will finally get its day in court and the real feeling of the House be taken. In that event the friends of the measure, both in Congress and out of it, believe, with good reason, that it will pass the House by a thumping majority and become a law. President Harrison has already recommended the measure, and would, no doubt, sign the pending bill if it ever reaches his table.

In view of this bright outlook, the officers and active friends of the Copyright League call upon the advocates of the measure for a last spurt in its behalf. As I have said, the chief obstacle lies in the indifference of Congress to any measure not distinctly political. This indifference can very largely be removed by representations from outside quarters which show a deep and widespread popular interest. Hence, if the community would resolve itself into a committee of the whole, and in that capacity notify Congress by letters, editorials, personal utterances, and other expressions of its feeling that the bill is one in which it takes an active concern, it is fair to conclude that the measure would finally, after half a century of exasperating delays, reach victory at last.

MUNRO VS. BEADLE.

ADOPTION OF ARBITRARY NAMES BY PUBLISHERS AS TITLES OF THEIR PUBLICATIONS VALID AS TRADE-MARKS.

At the January session of General Term of the Supreme Court, the case of George Munro, appellant, vs. Erastus F. Beadle et al., respondents,* came up for a hearing before Judges C. H. Van Brunt, Willard Bartlett, and Francis A. Macomber. Argument was made that where a publisher adopts a fanciful and arbitrary name for the purpose of distinguishing his works from those of all others, he acquires a certain property right in that name, which is entirely independent of the statute laws pertaining to copyright, and which satisfies all of the requirements made by the law governing trademarks; and any imitation of the name of his publication, which tends to mislead the reading public, is an infringement of his trade-mark.

The plaintiff publishes a series of works of fiction, known as the Old Sleuth Library. The first publication was called "Old Sleuth, the Detective, or, the Bay Ridge mystery," by Old Sleuth. This was first published in 1872, and again in 1880, and still again in 1885. Another work is entitled "Old Sleuth's Triumph," by Old Sleuth, first half. Another is "Old Sleuth's Triumph," second half. Another, which was published, was copyrighted in 1875, and republished in 1885, and is called "Old Sleuth in the Harness Again, or, four noted detectives unveiling the mystery," by Old Sleuth.

The defendants are publishers of Beadle's Dime Library. In the years 1885, 1887, and 1888, they published as a part of such library, stories entitled as follows: "Captain Goldgrip, the City Sleuth, or, the coolest woman in New York," "The California Sleuth, or, the trail of the gold grande," "The Silent Sleuth, or, the bogus nephew;" "Old Buckeye, the Sierra Sleuth, or, against desperate odds," "Kelley, Hickey and Co., the Sleuths of Philadelphia," consisting of four detectives by the names of Kelley, Hickey, Wheeler, and Sewer Sam. Another entitled "Deep Duke, the Silent Sleuth, or, the man of two lives," "The Young Sleuths, or, Rollicking Mike's hot trail," "Crowningshield, the Sleuth, or, pitiless as death," and "Broadway Billy's Death Racket, or, the silent street sleuth's wake."

Judge Macomber (Judges Van Brunt and Bartlett concurring) handed down the following decision: "The Old Sleuth Library, which is a serial, contains stories first published in the Fireside Companion, mainly devoted to the description of the feats of a detective known as 'Old Sleuth,' of all of which one Harlan P. Halsey is the author.

"Up to the time of the adoption by the plaintiff of the name Sleuth, or Old Sleuth, as applied to character in any of the works of fiction, or as indicative of the name of the publication issued by him, that word was not in common use, even if it existed as an established substantive. The word Sleuth, or Sleuth-hound, does not appear in the first edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, or in any edition of Worcester until after 1850, and then only in the supplement thereto. Its derivation is probably Icelandic, or at least Northern, and comes from the word slot, which was used in Scotland and the northern countries to indicate, primarily, a track in the snow, and afterwards a track in the earth as well. It did not find its way into the English dictionaries until very recently, and there is said to be pronounced as though spelled s-l-o-t-h. When detached from the word hound, to which it is commonly prefixed, it means the track of an animal as the same may be known by the scent.

* Appeal by the plaintiff from a judgment entered upon the decision of the Supreme Court at Special Term dismissing the plaintiff's complaint. The action was brought to enjoin the use of a trade-mark claimed by the plaintiff to be a part of the good-will of his business.

"The adoption of this word by the plaintiff seems to satisfy all of the requirements made by the law governing common law trade-marks, as determined by the case of Selchow v. Baker (93 N. Y. 59), which, among the numerous and varied cases upon the subject generally, is perhaps the most instructive for determining the question immediately before us. Even if the word sleuth was not new, that is to say, coined by the plaintiff, it certainly was not in common use at the time of its adoption by him as the name of his publication or library. The plaintiff was the first one to use it as applied to his own publications. Of this there is no dispute. It answers the purpose of distinguishing the plaintiff's works from those of all others. It is not descriptive of the subject matter of the manufacture or publication. It has no relation to the grade or quality of the novel. It was originally a fanciful and arbitrary word, to indicate the publications of the plaintiff alone. By its adoption and use the plaintiff acquired in it a certain property right, which is entirely independent of the statute laws pertaining to copyright and should be protected.

"It is plain that the defendant has infringed the trade-mark of the plaintiff by the dexterous use which he has made of the word Sleuth in the publications, the names of which are above recited. Any imitation of the name of the plaintiff's publication, which tends to mislead the reading public, would be an infringement, although the imitation was inexact. The circumstances that the defendants do not say that their serial publications are composed of numbers of the Old Sleuth Library and fail to call it Old Sleuth, or The Sleuth Library, is unimportant, provided they have used the word Sleuth, or Old Sleuth, in such a relation as would be apt to mislead and deceive the class of people for whom such publications were written. That such is the effect of their acts is quite clearly established by their evidence.

"Happily, no point is made by considerate counsel, which requires us to look into the matter of these several publications.

"The judgment should be reversed and new trial granted, with costs to the appellant to abide the event."

— Roger Foster for the appellant; Rowland Cox, for the respondent.

READING MAKES A FULL MAN.—*Mrs. Literary
—Do you believe with the poet that reading makes a full man? Mrs. Practical (sighing)—I don't know that reading makes a full man, but I am convinced that a club reading-room does.—

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF

ROBERT CARTER.

BY A. D. F. RANDOLPH.*

THIS is the end of but a single human life amid the surges of a city of nearly two millions of souls. The great tide of life flows on undisturbed; the waves still beat the shores with a resonant roar; and yet, as the world was bettered by this one life, so it must be the poorer for its close.

It is possible that the departure of our friend touches me more closely than any one else here. For more than fifty years I knew him. I see him now as when I saw him first; I see him now as when I met him last. Time, with its many changes, wrought no change in his affection for me—brought no loss in mine for him. And yet for nearly two score of years our business life ran along somewhat parallel lines—rival lines, as some might say—but without a single controversy or contention of any kind.

Here, if anywhere, I may emphasize his eminent service to the church and the world as a Christian publisher. I recall the first book that bore his honored imprint. It was a treatise on the doctrine of the atonement of Christ. Cradled in a theology as rugged as the hills under whose shadows he was born, our friend loved the meat of strong doctrine, and this first publication, on a central and fundamental doctrine of the gospel, was the keystone of the broad arch which he subsequently built. There was not a stone in it that was not a stone of truth; yet all were not purely theological or controversial; while over them was trailed many a vine of parable and story bearing the blossom and the fruit of Scripture truth. And so if his own theology was as rugged as his native hills, it was neither cold nor sterile. To it there ever came, as there always comes to them, the gentle rains of the spring, the fresh and beautiful verdure, the quickening suns of summer, and the full bloom of the heather.

Those who have watched the literary movements of the past thirty years, alone can comprehend the changes and temptations that have come with this development. The printed page, more largely than ever before, has been made an insidious and potential agent of evil. No article of the Christian faith, no formula of Christian science, no principle of Christian philosophy, that has not been vigorously and skilfully attacked from a thousand different angles. In song and story, in essay and homily, an emasculated gospel, or the still balder gospel of humanity, has been continually preached, with all the varied and consummate arts of human genius. To deny that the wide consumption of such a literature does not increase with what it feeds on would be but a denial of the natural cravings of the human heart; while to claim that this wild and popular clamor for it brought no temptation to publishers, would indeed be idle. But if to our friend such a temptation ever came, it came but to be resisted. Here, as in many another case,

"He stood
Four-square to all the winds that blow."

And so no book which he himself had not read ever bore the imprint of his name, and no book ever issued from his press that did not contain some seeds of divine truth.

* At the meeting of the Managers of the American Bible Society, New York, Jan. 2, 1890.

I know that it has been said of him in this connection that he was narrow. But he only desired, as has been said by another, to be as broad and as narrow as the Book of God. I doubt if in all the annals of that trade of which I am so proud, there can be found an example of loftier devotion to a high calling, with such singleness of purpose, and so deep a sense of personal responsibility, as is shown in his history. He was indeed, conspicuous for his "plain living and high thinking;" and he walked "as seeing Him who is invisible." So wherever he sent his printed page he became a teacher of other teachers, a comforter of sorrowing hearts, a minister of strength to enfeebled or doubting souls, a wise educator of little children, a promoter of love and faith in them that believe, an instructor in truth and righteousness to them that believed not.

Surely there can be no higher mission than this; and this was the mission of our honored friend.

WORK BY THE HOSPITAL BOOK AND NEWSPAPER SOCIETY.

The object of this society is to collect reading-matter from the public and distribute it among inmates of hospitals, institutions, and asylums. During the year ended Nov. 1, 1889, the Society distributed 8034 books, 20,701 magazines, 37,606 illustrated and weekly papers, and 6171 Christmas and Easter cards—all exclusive of the work of the Newspaper Committee, which gave out during the year 133,611 newspapers alone. In addition to this work fifty-two institutions were visited by members of the Society.

Mrs. E. H. Hoppin, Secretary of the Society, in her report at the fifteenth annual meeting makes an earnest appeal for funds with which to carry on the Society's good work. She sets forth the fact that the Society receives letters from all over the country asking for reading-matter, and the Society is unable in many cases to grant the requests. The Society maintains a club-room at Charity Hospital in New York for the male nurses employed there, where a pleasant room has been prepared, and the Society is anxious to do as much for the female nurses. It is desired to establish permanent libraries in this and other institutions.

Donations of reading-matter should be sent to the Secretary's office, 21 University Place; of money, to the Treasurer, Mrs. Fordham Morris, 20 Fifth Avenue.

MRS. BURNETT'S REPLY TO MISS WINTHROP'S CHARGE OF PLAGIARISM.

MRS. BURNETT has finally replied through the St. James's Gazette, London, to the statement published in that paper by Miss Winthrop concerning her story entitled "Wilfred," from which she claims Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was plagiarized. Mrs. Burnett's friends have told her that such reply will only serve to bring "Wilfred" before the public and advertise it, but she decides that she wishes the public to read "Wilfred" as the surest way of refuting the statements of its author. Mrs. Burnett claims that she never read "Wilfred," that she has not any recollection of its having been sent her, nor of its author having written her. She again reiterates the well-circulated story that "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was modelled after a little boy of seven, the son of an English mother accustomed to call his mother "Dearest," who was distinguished by the guileless, frank freedom of manner, entire friendliness with every human being, and the delightful, excited, little political interests that made the "Little Lord" so charming. The St. James's Gazette regrets that Mrs. Burnett has let three months go by without making this statement, but the accident so nearly fatal to her is probably sufficient reason for the delay. It hints that Mrs. Burnett may unconsciously have been influenced by reading "Wilfred," even though the fact of reading it has escaped her memory, but says: "No one could complain of such an unconscious plagiarism, if plagiarism it can be called; nor, indeed, could any one greatly object to a much more serious appropriation of literary matter if the effect of it was to take something from so poor and feeble a story as 'Wilfred,' in order to set off and embellish so admirable and artistic a piece of work as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.'"

SOME LESSER-KNOWN PSEUDONYMS AND THEIR OWNERS.

DOES every one know that "Marie Gaston" is the nom de plume of Alphonse Daudet; "Holme Lee" of Miss Harriet Parr, and "Sarah Tytler" of Miss Henrietta Kidder? Here are a few more of the names which occur most frequently in one's reading: "Country Parson" and "A. K. H. B." stand for Rev. Dr. Boyd, St. Andrews; "Christopher Crayon," J. Ewing Ritche; "Edward Garrett," Isabella Fyvie Mayo; "Girl of the Period," Mrs. Lynn Linton; "Professor Hoffmann," Angelo J. Lewis; "Ascot R. Hope," Robert Hope Moncrieff; "Henry Irving," J. H. Brodrribb; "Johnny Ludlow," the late Mrs. Henry Wood; "Helen Mathers," Mr. Reeve; "L. T. Meade," Mrs. Toulin Smith; "New Writer," Lewis Morris; "Cornelius O'Dowd," Charles Lever; "O. K.," Olga Kireet, now Madame Novikoff; "Pen Oliver," Sir Henry Thomson; "Rob Roy," John MacGregor; "S. G. O.," the late Rev. Lord Sydney Godolphin Osborne; "Annie Thomas," Mrs. Cudlip; "Toby, M.P.," Henry Lucy; "Verax," Henry Dunckley. . . .

Most of our poets, both great and small, have at some time appeared under the disguise of a nom de plume, but the list of those who make a regular practice of doing this is a short one; Lady Wilde, a society poetess, is known to be the authoress of poems signed "Speranza," and "Mary Berwick" stands for Adelaide Anne Procter. One would hardly have credited Longfellow with having signed himself "Joshua Coffin." . . .

To works of a practical and instructive nature authors usually sign their real names, but there are exceptions. "Cavendish" (on Whist) is the nom de plume of Henry Jones; "The Battle of Dorking" is by Colonel Chesney; and "Religion and Her Name" by Archbishop Whately, and not by "John Search." "J. Arbuthnot Wilson" stands for Mr. Grant Allen; and "Stonehenge" (on Dogs) for the late J. Walsh. Charles H. Ross sketched himself in the character of "Ally Sloper."

A PLEA FOR HANDY EDITIONS.

W. D. Howells, in Harper's Magazine.

No book too heavy to hold in one hand has any right to exist, to the exclusion of the same work in the ideal form; and we would have that form the original shape of publication; those who want books to furnish their libraries, not their minds, might wait. As it is now, half a dozen vested interests conspire to give the lover of literature his love first in a guise that makes it a burden. Certain works of science and of art, whose primary appeal is not literary, might take the shape their authors judged fittest, but there is no reason, except the commercial reason, why fiction, poetry, travel, biography, history, should not always be offered us first as we have suggested. Most duodecimo books, even, are too thick and too heavy, though generally the weight is from the quality, not the quantity, of the paper used; so that the royal octavos of this new edition of "Boswell's Johnson" are no more fatiguing to the wrist than half the duodecimo novels that issue from the press. A new book of the kinds we have mentioned should be heavier than a metropolitan Sunday newspaper, which it hardly exceeds in the number of its words, only by the weight of a very thin, flexible cloth binding.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THOMAS W. HARTLEY, for many years with the house of J. B. Lippincott & Co., and later with Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, and E. Claxton & Co., died at his residence, 420 Franklin St., in Philadelphia, on the 3d inst., in the 60th year of his age. He leaves a wife and daughter.

MR. THOMAS NAPIER HIBBEN, of the firm of T. N. Hibben & Co., Victoria, N. B., died January 12, aged 63 years. His business will be continued by his partners, C. W. Kammerer and W. H. Bone, and his eldest son, Jas. Parker Hibben.

CHARLES JENKINS, of New Brighton, S. I., President of the Manhattan News Company, at 35 Murray Street, died February 1.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE editor of the Literary World has been awarded the $300 prize offered by "The American Humane Education Society" to American editors for the best essay on the effect of humane education on the prevention of crime.

LOUIS KLOPSCH, of New York, who has just returned from his travels with Dr. Talmage, while in London bought the control of the American edition of the Christian Herald, which he has put under the editorial charge of Dr. Talmage.

The Book Fiend, published by C. D. Raymer, Minneapolis, with January, 1890, enters upon its third volume. It has changed its form to an octavo, has dropped its harrowing cover design, and is improved generally typographically. Inside the periodical bears the title, "The Literary Light."

THE Centralblatt für Bibliothekswesen, edited by Dr. O. Hartwig, and published by Otto Harassowitz, of Leipzig, gives in its double part for January and February of this year the second chapter of Dr. C. Häberlin's "Contributions to a Knowledge of Ancient Libraries and Books." This chapter discusses the difficult question as to the number of books or parchment rolls contained in the celebrated libraries of Alexandria and Pergamos, without, however, arriving at a definite conclusion on the subject.

The Newsdealer and Stationer is a new monthly journal published by John R. Suter, 188 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Its aim is to furnish a convenient means of communication between the publishers and newsdealers of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Hoboken, and adjacent cities, and its object is to organize all the local unions on the plan of the Brooklyn Associations, which provide benefits for their members when sick and furnish means for their burial, with other beneficial advantages.

Scribner's Magazine for February contains the first of two articles on John Ericsson, contributed to that magazine by Wm. C. Church. This article and the one to follow in March will show how large a place Ericsson filled in the engineering history of the present century, and how lofty were the purposes that impelled him to action. The two articles are introductory to the biography now in preparation for publication by Messrs. Scribner's Sons. Ericsson's life furnishes much more interesting material for biography than has usually been supposed, and it only requires skilful use of the material at hand to make a most interesting and instructive volume.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CASSELL & Co. will publish shortly "Star Land," a series of talks on astronomy with young people, by Robert S. Ball.

W. HEINEMANN, London, will publish at once four stories by Vernon Lee, under the title of "Hauntings: fantastic stories," and a new novel by Mr. F. W. Robinson, "A Very Strange Family."

It is the Writer Publishing Co. of Boston that publishes Luce's "Writing for the Press." In our list in the Annual Summary number the publisher was given as the Writer's Pub. Co., which is a different concern.

RESULT of Prang's National Flower campaign: 70 per cent. of all votes for Golden-Rod; 16 per cent. of all votes for Mayflower; 14 per cent. scattering for Daisy, Mountain Laurel, Dandelion, Sunflower, and others.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will issue shortly "The Papers of Sir George Bowen," edited by Stanley Lane-Poole; and "The Captain of the Polestar," a new story by the author of the successful historical novel, "Micah Clarke."

THE RED LINE PUBLISHING CO., of Canaseraga, N. Y., have begun the publication of a new series of books, called The Red Line Series. The first number, now ready, is "Principles of Pronunciation of the Modern Languages of Europe."

HUBBARD BROTHERS, Philadelphia, have published a volume on the great Pennsylvania disaster of a year ago, entitled "Through the Johnstown Flood, by a Survivor," the author being the Rev. David J. Beale. The story is told with great power, though not in any way sensational.

MR. PAUL LEICESTER FORD, in a privately printed pamphlet, "Who Was the Mother of Franklin's Son?" goes over the ground of what he calls this "historical conundrum," and makes a small contribution to its solution, not as decisive, but only as suggestive.

FLEMING H. REVELL, during the month of December, issued a new book every day. With this great increase of quantity this publisher has maintained his average of quality—most of his publications being works of religious tendency by authors well known in their special field. A few of the books specially suitable for Christmas presentation were very neatly brought out.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation "God and His World: an interpretation." The book is said to be written by a well-known American man of letters, whose name is withheld. His views are said to be neither denunciatory nor pessimistic, and his work is described as "covering the entire field of the development of human faith, pagan and Christian."

As has already been stated, Mr. George Allen, of Orpington, has established a branch at 18 Bell Yard, Temple Bar, London, and succeeds Hazell, Watson & Viney, who formerly supplied the trade with Mr. Ruskin's editions of his own works. The Ruskin Reading Guild journal will in future also be published by Mr. Allen, under the title of Igdrasil, a magazine of art, literature, and social philosophy. Mr. Allen has also become the publisher of Augustus Hare's books.

MRS. JOHN B. SHIPLEY (née Marie A. Brown) in a circular letter dated from 15 Sunnyside Road, Ealing, London, W., Eng., announces that she will publish through Kegan Paul, Trench, Trübner & Co., of London, and John B. Alden, of New York, her translations from the Swedish of "The Surgeon's Stories," by Prof. Topelius; "Nadeschda," the romantic poem by Runeberg; and an original work on "The Icelandic Discoverers of America." These announcements are accompanied by a lengthy statement of her grievances against American publishers in general and Jansen, McClurg & Co. in particular.

GINN & Co. will publish in April a selection of "The Best Elizabethan Plays," edited with an introduction by William R. Thayer. The selection comprises "The Jew of Malta," by Marlowe; "The Alchemist," by Ben Jonson; "Phylaster," by Beaumont and Fletcher; "The Two Noble Kinsmen," by Fletcher and Shakespeare; and "The Duchess of Malfy," by Webster. It thus furnishes not only the best specimen of the dramatic works of each of the five Elizabethan poets who rank next to Shakespeare, but also a general view of the development of the English drama from its rise in Marlowe to its last strong expression in Webster. This volume appeals to the general reader who wishes to get, in small compass, the best products of the Elizabethan drama (exclusive of Shakespeare), and also to the students in academies or colleges who are studying this most important period of English literature. It is a work equally well adapted to the library and to the class-room.

THE prize offered by Mrs. John Armstrong Chanler (Amélie Rives), through the American Economic Association, for the best essay on the subject of Child Labor, has been awarded to Mr. William F. Willoughby and Miss M. C. de Graffenreid, both of Washington, D. C. The prize was equally divided between the two contestants, their essays being of equal merit. Mr. Willoughby is a native of Alexandria, Va.; he graduated at the Washington High School, received the degree of A.B., in June, 1888, at the Johns Hopkins University, where he was awarded an "Honorary Scholarship" for three successive years, and is now a resident of Washington, D. C. Miss M. C. de Graffenreid comes of an old Southern family, she herself being a native of Georgia. She holds a position in the Department of Labor, and had a large share in the compilation of the Fourth Annual Report of the Commissioner of Labor, on the subject of Working Women, having interviewed personally 18,000 workingmen in different parts of the country. A paper written by her on "The Needs of Self-Supporting Women" has recently been published as a Supplemental Note to Johns Hopkins University Studies in Historical and Political Science.

IT is not a Chinaman of whom this story is told. He is a bookbinder, and being given an encyclopaedia in twenty-seven volumes to bind, with the first volume as a pattern, went ahead and stamped the whole lot on the back—

THE LIBRARY REFERENCE ATLAS OF THE WORLD.

By JOHN BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S. A complete series of 84 modern maps. With geographical index to 100,000 places. Folio, bound in half morocco, gilt edges, $18.00.

This work has been designed with the object of supplying the public with a thoroughly complete and accurate atlas of modern geography in a convenient reference form, and at a moderate rate. Special prominence has been given to the United States and the American continent. In the preparation of the maps no pains have been spared to insure accuracy of geographical data by reference to the original and most authentic sources. New railways, changes of political boundaries, new towns, the results of recent exploration and geographical research, have all been added before going to press. Special maps have been included in order to illustrate the leading features of physical and commercial geography. The extensive general reference index at the end of the atlas comprises the names of 100,000 places contained in the maps.

NOW READY.

"They Bristle With Thought and Sparkle With Wit."

Orations and After-Dinner Speeches of Chauncey M. Depew.

One octavo volume, extra cloth, new style, with portrait, $2.50; édition de luxe, limited to one hundred (100) numbered copies, with portraits and bound in half leather, $6.00.

There is no more pleasantly familiar name in this country than that of Mr. DEPEW, and it is by his speeches that he is best known. Very few of these have ever been printed in their entirety, and many of them have only been dealt out in fragments by the daily papers, and yet he has won a world-wide reputation by them. Taken in their complete form, as they are given in this volume, they are models of what such speeches should be. Nothing could seem drier than some of the subjects of Mr. DEPEW's speeches, but there is not a dry line in any one of them. They bristle with thought and sparkle with wit. As a story-teller he has few equals, and he has the art of telling an old story so that it strikes the hearer with all the freshness of a brand-new one, while of new stories he seems to have an inexhaustible supply.
